Joseph Warioba

Biochemistry Major at UNC Chapel Hill | Pre-Law
Chapel Hill, North Carolina, United States

Summary

As a Resident Advisor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, I foster an inclusive and supportive community for residents by providing mentorship, conflict resolution, and programming that enhances student life. I serve as a resource for academic and personal support, promote campus engagement, and uphold university policies to ensure a safe and welcoming environment. Through leadership, communication, and problem-solving, I help residents navigate their college experience and build meaningful connections.

In addition to my role as a Resident Advisor, I also have experience in the food service industry as a Food Service Worker at Bojangles, where I served as a Team Lead and Back of House Lead, overseeing key operational tasks to ensure efficient service and quality food preparation. I also completed a Mental/Behavioral Health Internship at Quality Health Care Services DC, where I gained valuable experience in clinical documentation, client scheduling, and confidentiality. I am currently pursuing a Bachelor's degree in Biochemistry at UNC Chapel Hill, with an expected graduation date of May 2027.

Basix East Africa

Operations Management Intern

May 2023 - August 2023 (4 months)

Dar es Salaam, Tanzania

As an Operations Management Intern at a leading Management, Scientific, and Technical Consulting Services firm, I contributed to optimizing operational processes, improving efficiency, and supporting project management initiatives. My responsibilities included analyzing operational workflows, conducting data analysis to inform decision-making, and assisting in the development of process improvement strategies. I collaborated with cross-functional teams to support client engagements, manage project timelines, and ensure quality service delivery. Additionally, I prepared reports, presentations, and operational documentation, enhancing internal processes and client satisfaction. This role strengthened my analytical, organizational, and problem-solving skills while providing hands-on experience in operations management within a professional services environment.
